Isaiah 55:12

“Poetic, But Not
a Promise of Prosperity”

For ye shall go out
with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

These are beautiful
words, but out of context, they could easily be misapplied

to create unrealistic expectations.

It happens.

Misuse of this verse
and others similar
to it are frequently
sprayed from
pulpits to hype and
excite
crowds.

Go deeper.

Verses may be poetic, but many
are not necessarily
promises
of prosperity.
